TREASON IS ASSASSINATION.—To one who has watched the progress of the rebellion, and noted the malignant passions it has brought into action, the assassination of Mr. Lincoln and Mr. Seward appears almost natural. Treason is the crime which embraces all others. Perjury is committed in the first act of treason. Murder and assassination are but minor acts. For years, leading rebel papers have advocated assassination. It has been discussed and approved in leading articles in the Richmond, Alabama, and other Southern journals. It has been advocated by leading rebels in public speeches. Large sums have been offered for the assassination of Mr. Lincoln, by rebels, over their own names published in the newspapers. Men have, through the same channels, offered to do the deed upon certain specified terms. During all this time, these horrible propositions have never been rebuked or disapproved of by the rebel Government. Neither Jeff Davis, nor General Lee with all his "dignity of character," has ever uttered one word in condemnation of propositions shocking to the moral sense of mankind, and disgraceful even to the savage. For years by this infamous advocacy the South has been educated up to a state of moral turpitude in which murder has assumed an appearance of a fine art, and assassination seemed a heroic virtue. The perpetrators of the deed are no more guilty than the editors and speakers who have advocated it; not so guilty as Davis and Lee and all other influential rebels who indorsed, openly or by silence, the infamous proposition. It is but a part of the greater crime of which they are guilty, and for which they are responsible.—Call.

A CONTRAST.—One of our Generals and his staff wished a day or two since to go beyond the lines, but were hailed by a black soldier on picket, who refused to let them pass. "Don't you know me? I am your General," said the commander, who was in a hurry to pass. May be so, sah, but I was told to let no one out wid out dey had a pass, and as you hasn't got one you can't go by," was the response. Remonstrance was in vain, and the General and his staff had to wait with as much patience as they could command until the officer who commanded the pickets could be sent for, and the requisite permission to pass given. As the General rode by he said to the colored soldier, "You are a good man and do your duty faithfully."

In marked contrast to this commendation of a faithful sentinel, was the conduct of a young Lieutenant, who had occasion not long ago to pass a guard, who informed the little officer that smoking was contrary to orders. The Lieutenant turned up his nose, bade the sentinel go to a place where the temperature is above boiling point, and walked by with the utmost dignity.—[Memphis.]

The Daily Union Vedette.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, MAY 17, 1885.

We Shall See.

Sombdy has been pricking the "Lion of the Lord" with a very long pole and his anger is aroused to such a degree that we doubt if even the skill of Van Amburg could tame him. He shakes his savage mane in wrath and roars tremendously, smiting his cage with vengeful paw and (figuratively) lashing his shaggy sides with furious tail, until every jackal in the entire menagerie barks in admiration and applause.

Who the deuce is it, that has been stirring "honest anger up to such a pitch of mutiny and rage?" If you don't take care he'll hurt somebody. Don't go to near the cage, gentlemen, he's dangerous when he growls. If he breaks out, if he ever does get loose, there'll be trouble—women and children better retire—particularly the ladies—he's death on crinoline and next to a piece of calico he has a hankering after small children, has the Lion.

Really it is too much—it's outrageous. He's been driven from his lair five times has the Lion, only because he devoured "as many women as he damn pleased" and he won't be hunted any more, not he. If those wretched "Gentile" Jules Gerards, that infest Zion, persist in pestering the "Lion," if he should be compelled to flee to the jungles of the Sandwich Islands, he'll leave the "Land of Milk and Honey," even Deseret, a "howling wilderness," will the angry Lion. So he hath sworn and so it shall come to pass if—but don't provoke him, you naughty "Gentiles," because there's no telling what might happen.

If this sort of thing continues we'll wake up some fine morning and find that Brigham has burned up Salt Lake—the city we mean, adobes and all—he says he will, and who ever knew him to prophesy anything that failed to happen as he foretold? Didn't he say, once on a time, that in less than nine months there wouldn't be a "Gentile" left in the Territory?—and a blind man can see that the thing is going to happen just as plainly as a man with two eyes. True, if he burns as he threatens, he will add the crime of arson to his other criminal offenses, but who doubts his disposition to do all that and more if "there not dangerous."

A little bird has whispered us a secret. It is, that the Prophet need not fret about people trying to drive him away from the scene of his iniquities. It is not the intention to permit him to get off thus easily. It is the purpose to arraign him for high crimes and misdemeanors and make him answer to justice for laws he has outraged. Vengeance is armed and only bides its time. Witnesses, on whose consciences the knowledge of guilt rests heavily, come in the dead of night to ease their souls of a fearful burthen. Were there none else, the very ghosts of those that slumber at Mountain Meadows would arise and keep watch and ward over every avenue of escape from these mountains that all, who participated, immediately or remotely, in their "untimely taking off," or who were partakers of the spoils should pay the penalty of their crime and appease the manes of murdered innocents. We shall see.

A Frenchman was asked his opinion of the Derby. He spread his palms, shrugged his shoulders, raised his eyebrows, and said: "Here dey come, dere dey go; pay me £100. Ma foi, woid tout."

He Who gets angry because I differ with him in politics, is simply a fool; but he who despises me because I oppose his religion, is a knave.

DIED.—The Telegraph announces the sudden death at Pole Creek on the 14th inst. of R. S. Ellsworth, Assistant Superintendent on the Western Union Telegraph Line. The demise of Mr. Ellsworth leaves vacant a place that it will be difficult to fill. A pioneer in pushing the telegraph out into these distant regions, he has ever been at his post doing duty, and there has found his death, at last. But more, much more, than any mere loss of this nature, is the loss of a true, generous and noble man. For such in every sense was Mr. Ellsworth. He possessed in an eminent degree all those engaging qualities that even in business relations made friends of all with whom he associated, and who are now called to mourn sincerely the loss of a tried and valued friend. Few ever asked aught of him that, if in his power, he did not grant, and at all times he was found ready to lend the helping hand and give kindly assistance to those who stood in need. It was such generous offices that endeared him to all and that, especially among men of his own profession, make his untimely loss severely felt.

Mr. Ellsworth was born in Prince Edward County, Canada West, and at the time of his death was about thirty years of age, fifteen of which have been spent in telegraphing. He came to the United States in 1857, and during our late civil war was a thorough, undeviating Union man. His brother, also an operator, is a Lieutenant in the United States service, stationed, we believe, at Fort Laramie.

On the receipt of the sad intelligence of his death in the city, the Telegraph Office was draped in mourning and the instruments, that had so often pulsed with electric thought under his hand, were interwoven with the emblems of sadness, typical of the sorrow felt by his associates, who mourn him as a friend and by whom his memory will ever be kept sacred.

We clip the following Los Angeles Cal. items from the Sacramento Union of May 8th, which gives a glowing prospect of the oil workings and cotton crop in that state:

The reports from the Los Angeles Pioneer Oil Company continues very favorable. We are informed that, notwithstanding the machinery was stopped for two days this week for repairs, the depth of one hundred and thirty feet was reached on Thursday, and they expect to be down one hundred and sixty feet on Saturday, April 29th. The workmen are now boring through clay which contains many traces of oil. Altogether, the prospects are quite flattering.

A correspondent writes: we have had the pleasure of examining a field of cotton planted by E. M. McDonald, and found the cotton showing itself above ground, with leaves of a strong and healthy appearance. The soil, as yet, needs no irrigation, being quite damp an inch below the surface. So far, the prospect is good for a cotton crop, and the hope of a pick of five hundred to six hundred pounds to the acre is far from being diminished by its present appearance.

A man named Robert Parker, carpenter, was shot on last Sunday night; he died on Monday evening. A Mexican was found dead on Monday morning. It seems that on Sunday night a number of stabbing and shooting affrays occurred.

MADE HIM SWALLOW THE OATH.—Aurora, Esmeralda, is an unhealthy place for traitors. A man named Judah was arrested there on Saturday last for exulting over the assassination of President Lincoln. After remaining in custody several hours he was compelled to take the oath of allegiance in public under the flag he hates. Two military companies were out in full uniform, in the presence of whom and a large number of citizens the traitor was compelled to retract and beg pardon for his offense.

AN ADDRESS TO THE PEOPLE.

BY A RESIDENT OF UTAH.

ARTICLE 21.

It is apparent to even the most casual observer that whatever other faults the inhabitants of these valleys may have justly laid to their charge, that of idleness cannot consistently be included in the number. For industry, perseverance and indomitable zeal in the subjecting of the stubborn soil to their control, the Mormon community stand unsurpassed. Their beautiful motto, the Bee Hive, is aptly suggestive of their industrial assiduity. Collected mainly from the plebeian ranks of aristocratic nations; injured to toil from their youth; tutored in the practice of rural economy, or educated in the school of bitter adversity, they have labored with an energy indefatigable, a resolution bold and unwavering, an ardor irrepressible and commendable. Such a strenuous application to the imperative duties that fell to their lot as they have displayed, would, in a country whose soil would be less unremunerative than the saline-terrine soil of Utah, have secured for them a competency; while here it has barely kept them from a state of starvation. Hence we see but few wealthy men among the lay members of the church.

Yet there is a class who count their acres and their stock by hundreds, their means by thousands. But who are they? Generally speaking, the dignitaries of the church. I have already shown that for the first few months of their residence in Utah, all were so poor that none could boast of a sufficiency of even the staple articles of subsistence, much less of wealth. The question therefore arises: If they are now so much richer than the lay members, whence have their riches been derived? Have they labored with greater perseverance than their less opulent neighbors? Do they possess greater mechanical or agricultural skill? Have their expenses been less heavy? Or, have there been channels of wealth open to them, which, to the less fortunate class have been closed, and if so, what are they?

A very brief examination of some of these questions will suffice. That they have not labored more perseveringly, every hardy son of toil but too experimentally knows. That they possess neither superior mechanical nor agricultural skill is abundantly evident from the fact that their various kinds of business are conducted by the talent and ability of their dependents, those of the poorer class. That their expenses have not been less heavy, is demonstrated by their many costly, and in some instances, considering the nature of the country, palatial residences; by their splendid "turn-outs;" by their expensive and extensive domestic establishments, and a thousand other corroborative evidences. Failing to discover reasonable grounds for the supposition that the riches of the affluent class are or can be attributable to any cause implied in the foregoing queries, I will now proceed to examine the important question.

"Have there been channels of wealth open to them, which, to the less fortunate class, have been closed, and if so, what are they?" Believing that therein will be the true solution of the matter be found.

In the conducting of society affairs generally, there are more or less of monetary considerations necessary; but there is, probably, no society extant that counts among its members so few of the rich and so many of the poor as the Brighamite faction does, that has so many and varied funds by which means are extracted from the pockets and labor of its disciples. I do not refer in this connection so particularly to the funds established for, and appropriated to, local purposes, as to those which are ostensibly intended for church general purposes, and which swell the aggregate of receipts in the church financial department. The expenditure of those of the first class is accounted for to the donor, that of the latter class it is my intention to freely expatiate upon.

FEMALE CLERKS.—There are about 700 female clerks employed in the Treasury Department, and selected from almost all the States in the Union. Many of them have been rich, but are now poor. Many of them are young ladies; many of them widows, and some few are married. Their chief business is cutting and counting new legal tender and national bank notes, and in counting and destroying old ones. Their pay is $720 per annum each.

ON DIT.—We clip the following commendations of one soon to be connected with the VEDETTE, from the columns of our Colorado cotemporaries. Their praise is earnest and doubtless deserved:

A CARD.—The subscriber, in resigning his connection with these columns for a wider field of enterprise, respectfully respectfully returns thanks to all those whose courtesy and kindness he has had the honor of enjoying for five or six years past; assuring them the same shall not be soon forgotten, but looked back to as bright beacons through the aisles of future time.

O. J. GOLDRICK.

—News.

The above announces in brief and fitting terms the departure of our worthy co-worker from the field of labor in Colorado. In his absence the ablest chair editorial of the Colorado press will be vacated, while the columns of one of our neighboring journals in our sister Territory will be made brilliant by his pen. He goes to assume control of the UNION VEDETTE, at Camp Douglas, in Utah. It is gratifying to know that in his new position Goldrick will not be so far removed from us but that we can receive his little gems daily, through the medium of the VEDETTE. Ever spicy, always brilliant, Goldrick has been the star of local writers in the west. His faithful descriptions of the passing events of the day, as chronicled in the columns of the Daily News for the past five years have made him popular throughout the country, and to his rich and racy style of pen eloquence we think the Denver sheet has owed much of its popularity. As a canvasser and agent he is known as universally successful within his range, which has extended from the northern portions of our territory to the borders of Old Mexico. His fluent speech and social manner has won many hundreds of names to the subscription books of the News office, and has thus been the means of spreading the influence of a true loyal paper through the unsettled mass of political elements of which our country was at one time composed.—Mining Register.

So then our friend has withdrawn from the Rocky Mountain News and is to become one of the editorial staff of the DAILY UNION VEDETTE, of Camp Douglas, Utah. While regretting his departure from the "fraternity" of Colorado, we cannot but congratulate him on severing his connection with a concern, which, but for him, would have yielded up the ghost long ago, and on the wide field, the grand, central field which thus opens for his future. Salt Lake City is to be the City of the Plains. Both its location and early settlement insure it. At the same time, the peculiar features of its society will furnish an interesting topic for the pen of a clever writer like Goldrick. We predict a glorious success for the VEDETTE and for the Professor. All that will be requisite on his part is the exercise of the same energy and enterprise which for five years he has displayed in extending the circulation, soliciting incidental business, and contributing with his ready pen and genial character to the interest and success of the News.—Black Hawk Journal

THE LAST OF THE CHARLESTON MERCURY.—A refugee from the interior of South Carolina has given to the Charleston Courier—transformed into a loyal paper—the last scene in the death of that pioneer organ of the rebellion, the Charleston Mercury. He says that the train of cars in which were the presses, types and other materials, and the books and private papers of the office and of its proprietor, Rhett, was overhauled and burned by Sherman's troops at a railroad junction between Columbia and Cheraw—caught as a fugitive from justice and burned in the woods. Such has been the fate of the Charleston Mercury establishment, after thirty years of agitation for a Southern Confederacy.—N. Y. Herald.

The difference between the married and divorced is exceedingly slight, consisting merely of the exchange of a couple of letters, the married being united and the divorced untied.

HUMAN existence hinges upon trifles—what is beauty without soap?

THE NATIONAL DEBT.—If any persons seriously question the ability of the Nation to pay off the National debt created by the war, an examination of a few items which contribute to the revenue ought to satisfy them of their error. Taking the year ending June 30th, 1880, as a guide, the amount of whisky consumed is 100,000,000 gallons. The present rate of duty is two dollars per gallon, which would bring in two hundred millions revenue. But suppose the heavy tax reduces consumption and causes smuggling to the extent to reduce the revenue one-half, it still affords one hundred millions. Upon the same basis, tobacco and cigars will yield another hundred millions. Then the internal Revenue law is calculated to raise three hundred millions. Secretary Fessenden estimated the public debt on the 30th of June next, upon a war basis, at two thousand two hundred millions, but perhaps it may amount to twenty-five hundred millions. The annual interest will then be about one hundred millions. This we will make the whisky drinkers pay. The revenue from tobacco and internal revenue will enable the Government to pay four hundred millions the first year on the National debt, and the revenue from the duties on imports and other sources, will defray the current expenses of the Government on a peace footing. Each year the interest would become less and the army and navy expenses would be reduced so that the taxes may be reduced. Or the public debt may be paid off less rapidly and the taxes still more reduced after the first year.

How different from the old nations of Europe. They do not dream of ever paying their debts, and content themselves with paying the interest only. Instead of diminishing their debts, they are increased by every war they engage in. The debt of England is $4,000,000,000, of Austria and France $3,000,000,000 each, and Spain $2,500,000,000. The present generation will see our debt paid off, unless it is greatly increased by foreign war.—Vigilant Union.

BUSINESS.—We hear from Denver that Gen. Connor's headquarters will soon be at Julesburg, the proper place for the general Plains Headquarters when one means business. Thank God the Territories at last have a man at the head of military affairs who is something besides the breathing, living, moving spirit of a mob. No more calling out of militia, and using of regular troops to carry elections. No more of that feeble war with Indians—which has taught them to despise us. No more raids into Arkansas while the Platte route is being depopulated. No more attacks on prisoners of war while whole tribes are in the field committing depredation and outrage. It may be difficult to protect a slender line of travel, thirteen hundred miles in length, even with ample troops; but with a plain blunt man who knows his business and is devoted to it, located at Julesburg where the roads diverge to Denver and Salt Lake, with three or four division commanders at their posts in different sections, and probably an offensive expedition to carry the war into their own country, we shall probably enjoy protection if we do not soon hear the last of the Indian war because hearing the last of Indians, at least in such numbers as to be formidable or dangerous.—Black Hawk Journal.

PEACHES IN SANTA CLARA.—The San Jose Mercury of May 6th says:

The Peach crop will be almost a total failure in this Valley the present season, in consequence of the late spring frosts. We have examined some of the finest peach orchards in this valley that will not produce a basket of peaches to the acre. The trees appear fresh and vigorous, but fruitless. Apples, pears and the smaller fruits, we shall have an abundance of—in fact, the prospect was never more promising.

Local Matters.

J. ORNSTEIN has revived the new Meat Market, recently vacated by the dissolution of the firm of Rosenbaum & Co. He will keep none but the best of meats and at reasonable prices.

Mr. Ornstein is soon to open a handsome market in camp, for the accommodation of this command. All we have to say is, hurry up, "We're orful hun. gry."

THE Y. M. L. Association held their annual election of officers on Monday evening. This association has thrived beyond all expectation and has become one of the standard institutions of regenerating Utah. Its members comprise men of sterling moral worth and intelligence, and the influence of the association is gradually working upon the people of S. L. City.

We are gratified to learn that our estimable friend and co-worker in the glorious cause of Temperance, Van B. DeLashmunt, has been elected W. C. T. of the Lodge of I. O. G. T. located in Washoe, Nevada. The Good Templars there, have a true patriot and a zealous member in the person of our brother DeLashmunt.

Our volunteers are getting somewhat "petroleum." Several specimens of the valuable "grease" styled "petroleum," or something they imagine to be the real stuff, have been brought into camp recently. Go on, hunting, boys, but don't forget to register a few feet for Local.

COCHRAN & WESTROPE have re-leased and refitted the Eureka Stables in S. L. City, where the emigrants can have their stock well fed and looked after, at cheaper rates than at any other corral or stable in the city. Patronize them.

At S. J. Lees' may be found a good assortment of provisions and groceries. Miners can procure a splendid outfit at this establishment. East Temple street, Salt Lake City.

On motion of James M. Thurmond yesterday, in the Third Judicial District Court, Hon. John Titus, Judge, W. T. Sanders, of Montana Territory, was admitted to the Bar.

LKE, the Barber, has opened and fitted the old shop of Gill & Hanneforth, and he would respectfully invite his old customers to give him a call.

A MEETING is called by the miners of Rush Valley, to be held on the 10th of June next, for the election of District Recorder.

JEFF. DAVIS BRANDED AS A MURDERER.—President Johnson has issued a proclamation charging Jeff Davis with inciting, concerting and procuring the assassination of the late President Lincoln and the attempted assassination of Secretary Seward, and offering a reward of $100,000 for his apprehension, that he may be brought to trial. Davis's instruments in arranging for these atrocious crimes are said to have been Jacob Thompson, Clement G. Clay, Beverly Tacker, George N. Sanders as the parties who figured last year at Niagara Falls as Peace Commissioners, and who were in correspondence with the Copperhead leaders as to the nature of the platform that should be adopted by the Chicago Convention. A reward of $25,000 each is also offered for their apprehension.

The proclamation of the President is astounding. We have pronounced the rebellion itself an organized assassination, and knew that treason included every crime known in the calendar, but were not prepared to hear that Davis was guilty of such a base, cowardly and infamous act as conniving at the murder of President Lincoln. His bitter, malignant, cruel vindictive nature has been plainly enough evinced by his coarse malevolence of speech in every allusion to the Government and troops of the Union, and by his tolerance of the fiendish treatment under which Union prisoners were tortured slowly to death; but it was supposed he had to much sagacity, whatever might have been the secret desire of his heart, to risk bringing upon his name and that of his section and upon the cause he represented, such damnable, eternal infamy as must attach to the crime now solemnly charged to his account by the head of a great Government. Yet his guilt "appears from evidence," says the proclamation, which brands him a murderer and puts a price upon his head; and we are bound to believe that the wise and great men who administer the Government of the United States would not commit themselves to all the consequences of that astounding document without being sure of the truth of its assertions. They would not incur the chances of that loss of dignity and credit before the nations of the world that would surely result from a failure to prove all they have charged.

The evidence will undoubtedly be laid before the country at the proper time, and mankind can then see the hellishness of a rebellion that sought to build on the bloody ruins of a free government an empire devoted to the barbarism of slavery. The domestic and foreign sympathizers of this horrible conspiracy against human rights may well hide their heads in shame and humiliation when they witness its fitting climax. Nothing else was lacking to make the very name of secession and rebellion odious forever in the land which they have cursed by the production of such monsters, whose execution as felons amid the execrations of their countrymen and mankind will be but a poor atonement for their last crowing act of wickedness.—S. F. Bulletin.
